across was a Last Will and Testament dated the 27th day of January 1819 and it is really different from the Wills written today. A copy of this rare paper follows:

In the name of God, Amen. I Hopkins Nowlin of Pittsylvania County and state of Virginia; being sick and weak of body but of sound mind and dispos ing memory. Calling to mind the uncertainty of life, and Certainty of Death, Knowing that it is once appointed unto all men to die Do make this my last will and testament in the manner and words following; I give and bequeath my soul into the hands of Almighty God who gave it; and my Body to the Earth to be burried in a decent and Christian like manner; and such wourdily goods as it has plased God to bless me with in this life: after the payment of all my just debts I give and bequeath as follows. Item I give and bequeath to my beloved Brother Bryan Nowlin one Negro, Boy Sam, one Sorrel Horse, saddle, and Bridle all my household and Kitchen furniture together with all and every part and parcel of my Estate both real and Personal to him and his heirs forever; having disposed of my whole Estate both real and Personal I do constitute ordain and appoint him the said Bryan Nowlin my only Exertor of this my last Will and Testament hereby revok ing disanulling and disallowing of all Wills and Testaments heretofore by me made I do pronounce and declare this to be my last will and testament. In witness whereof I have hereunto set my hand and affixed my seal this 27th day of January 1819.

Several bank notes were found with the papers. Most of them were similar to the following:

Dear Sir:

I am instructed by the Board of Directors to inform you, that your note, for two thousand dollars, endorsed by Mr. B. W. Nowlin will be due on the 11/14 of March next at which time they will require it to be paid. I am, respectfully, Your ob't serv't,

We wonder just what value that $2000.00 would be compared to the value of today.

Excerpts from a business letter, dated February the 24th 1837, mailed from Selma, Alabama to Montgomery, Alabama, regarding the sale of Negroes follows. "Negroes are none selling I think this is a very poor market I am anxious to sell out but I am afraid I shall be here some time"; further down in the letter was written, but as for Moses he has died and Sanders says that he will not pay for him for he says that the doctor says that he had a cronick disease The disease was the Dropsy and he says he will stand suit I want you to when you go home to advise with a lawyer on the subject and find out whether we ought to get all the proof we could in the subordinate where he was raised", and so forth.

There were a number of "love letters" from a woman to her husband but we couldn't find any in the collection from the husband to his wife and were interested to know where he was.

One of these written from Franklin County on February 25, 1834 began "Dear Husband I resume my pen wooce resume to inform you of our healths which is much as you left us hoping when this meets you it may find you in perfect health I am very impatient to hear from you as I have not heard from you since you left me and that appears to be too months in length but I hope the Lord will provide for us he has provided for us so far as to save us from the fire when the jale was burned which I thought was providential for us", after several more lines the letter ended, "farwell my dear husband .writill we meet again which I hope will not be long I remain you loving wife until death", and the letter was signed.

It was interesting to note that there was little or no punctuation in the letters.

I do not know what Mr. Woods has in mind regarding these papers he found but do feel that they are of real value and are most interesting. We spent several hours going through them and did not begin to cover them all.

Industry Through an Organized Effort."

Two forums set for Feb. 10 will include representatives from all the statewide organizations concerned with cattle production and marketing. This should provide some frank discussion of the beef industry present and future, said Williamson.

Ernest C. Charron, Chase Manhattan Bank, will discuss, "The Beef Industry From Banker's Viewpoint."

Convention participants will be entertained at the awards banquet Friday evening by a group of 4-H Share-the-Fun contestants from throughout the state.

Many statewide beef industry groups have scheduled their annual meetings in conjunction with this year's convention, according to Martin F. Strate, Excutive Secretary, Virginia beef Cattle Association.

In addition to Strate's group, they include: Virginia Beef Cattle Improvement Association, Virginia Polled Hereford Association, Virginia Simmental Association and the Virginia Livestock markets Assn. The Va. Angus Association will hold an open board meeting during the convention.

Extension Agent Smith said all beef cattle producers and those connected with the industry are invited to attend this year's convention.

The Paster Speaks

DO MORE THAN JUST SURVIVE

There is more to life than making a living, obtaining food, clothing, and shelter. A man's worth may be measured by what he is committed to in his life. Jesus said, "Follow me, and I will make you to become fishers of men." Jesus expected his followers to "act" on their faith. Other words, their worth as a disciple would be measured in terms of their total committment. To be fishers of men meant they must act on their faith in Christ.

Many persons today live simply to survive. They work to make a living. They build to keep warm. They eat to stay alive. In the book Are You Nobody, author Paul Tournier develops this thought further. He claims that men will soon be able to become men of purpose. With the necessities of life met, man can do more than merely survive. He can exist to live, and he can live to exist meaningfully.

Our world is searching for a cause. We have the luxury of having enough to fulfil basic needs. Our cause, then, can be much more than fulfilling basic needs. Our cause can be to live for Christ and to conquer the world with the cause of Christ.

I would urge every person who truly knows Jesus Christ to get involved in sharing the fact that the key to heaven is Jesus. Key 73 is simply "Calling our Continent to Christ". If you are recommending Jesus as the Saviour then you are calling men to Christ whether or not you have officially stated to someone. "I am part of Key 73." There has always been strength in unity, and in this case I call upon you to "let's get together to tell others of Jesus."

A NEW HEART AND SPIRIT

"A new heart I will give you, and a new spirit I will put within you; and I will take out of your flesh the heart of stone and give you a heart of flesh."
Ezekiel 36:26

Through the prophets succeeding generations realize that the calamities which befell ancient Israel and Judah, the destruction of the nations, the ravaging of the countries, the captivity of the people, were the consequence of their forsaking God and their refusal to obey His commandments. How successful the prophets were in impressing this upon their contemporaries we cannot be sure, for they ran into stout opposition from those who refused to accept their revelations from God and their interpretations of God's will.

There was raised, though, by those easily satisfied with a problem from the interpretation of these events by the heathen neighbors of Israel and Judah. The people of these two countries were recognized, not only by themselves but by their neighbors, as the chosen people of their God. In the prevailing opinion, any disaster which befell a people was a disaster to their God as well, and the destruction and captivity of Israel and Judah indicated that their God was weak and ineffectual, unable to save His people.These heathen neighbors missed, of course, the reality that Israel and Judah for the most part, except for a faithful remnant, had rejected God and divorced themselves from Him. They missed also the fact that the God of Israel and Judah, who is God of all creation, required obedience from those He had chosen to be His people. Totally foreign to their understanding was the nature of a moral God, Whose laws can no more be disobeyed with impunity than can the laws of the physical universe.

Ezekiel addressed himself to this problem in interpreting God's role in the events of the time; in answer he proclaimed God's promise to bring His people back to their homeland, repopulate the country, and restore His people to their inheritance. This message of hope to a people who had rebelled against their God had to be reconciled with the requirements of a moral God. God "will vindicate the holiness of my great name, which has been profaned among the nations, and which you have profaned among them . . . "For this to be accomplished, the old rebellious nature of the people must be changed.

God through Ezekiel describ ed this change in terms of what we today might call a heart transplant. The heart of stone, impervious to the call and claim of God and hardened to humanity, would be replaced by a heart of flesh, responsive to God and with feeling for humankind, in a spiritual transplant which would transform the nature of the individual. The new spirit which God would put in His people would influence the individual to be obedient to God and to obey His laws.

Man has never gotten away from the need of the heart transplant of which Ezekiel spoke. The heart of stone, rebellious against God and indifferent if not actually hostile to people,is an apt description of the human heart in its natural state, the heart of flesh responsive and obedient to God andcompassionate of people a fitting description of the heart transformed by the power of God. The experience this transplant requires a new spirit, willing for God to rule in one's life and humble to submit to His purposes.

Because people still forsake God, rebel against His commandments, and behave in ways according to His will, Ezekiel's message to His fellow exiles is pertinent today. Unless the heart of stone is replaced by the heart of flesh in a spiritual transplant, man is headed for destruction as surely as the stone-hearted people of ancient Israel and Judah were. God's invitation to men to have this transplant continues open; acceptance is the human being's primary need.
